Ben,

I tried sending the requested photos over earlier in the week but it must've been too large of a file so I'm splitting them in half. These are photos of the doors and one of the windows. Again, I didn't replace any exterior doors or even any interior ones. The next email will have a photo of all the new windows.

Is there ANY chance that instead of contesting these violations I would be able to pay a fine? I know you get sob stories all the time but the only reason we are selling this house is because my wife was diagnosed with terminal brain cancer. If not I totally understand but it would be extremely helpful if you can.
